1200: MyND Talk: Lee and several of his notable colleagues and friends have come together to create a work for all who have suffered heartbreak. It is for those troubled by anxiety, depression, loss, grief, questioning their self-worth, caught in addiction or obsessive/compulsive behavior, and struggling to find meaning. While the list is broad in scope, it shares a common theme: The conditions reflect a broken relationship to the core of your being, your own 'healing heart, sacred heart.' For anyone who has struggled with the not enoughnot good enough, not pretty enough, not smart enough, not strong enoughand the list goes on, this is created with you in mind. Archive 03-27-2019; Podcaster's website ; Underwriter website

1230: MyND Talk: This Messy Magnificent Life explores the personal beliefs, hidden traumas, and social pressures that shape not just womens feelings about their bodies but also their confidence, choices, and relationships. After years of teaching retreats and workshops on weight, money, and other obsessions, Roth realized that there was a connection that held her students captive in their unhappiness. With laugh-out-loud humor, compassion, and dead-on insight she reveals the paradoxes in our beliefs and shows how to move beyond our past to build lives that reflect our singularity and inherent power. 1330: Catskill Review of Books: Greg Olear's Novel does for New Paltz what Ulysses did for Dublin, sort of. Except that New Paltz has a lot more polyamory. Archive 11-27-2011; Podcaster's website ; Underwriter website

1400: Conversation Earth: How and why did our society come to value economic growth so highly that we pursue it at the risk of our long-term survival? For some time scientists have warned that human civilization is living beyond the ecological means of our planet. Yet our commitment to economic growth is unwavering. Australian writer Kerry Higgs chronicled this triumph of denial over science in her book, Collision Course. She shares her findings here. We sat down with her in April, 2017 for a two-part interview. 1430: Conversation Earth: What exactly are think tanks supposed to be thinking about? Are some of them part of a campaign to cast doubt on science when it could interfere with profits? Author Kerry Higgs recounted the growth-seeking activities of the corporate world in her book, Collision Course: Endless Growth on a Finite Planet. Her research reveals think tanks, industry associations, and even university economics departments all play a role in advancing and preserving our societys commitment to growth above all else, even if it means ignoring science. This is part two of a 2017 interview. Kerry Higgs taught history at Melbourne University and environmental studies at the University of New South Wales. Shes a University Associate at the University of Tasmania, where she received her PhD in Geography and Environmental Studies. Archive 05-08-2017; Podcaster's website Underwriter website
