This is part two of an interview with Terry Patten, author of A New Republic of the Heart: An Ethos for Revolutionaries, a book about dealing with the current highly complex global climate and cultural crisis that is threatening the survival of humanity and many other species of life on planet Earth. In this interview we talk about the need for spiritually oriented people to bring their inner practice into the world for the common good, and for worldly people to recognize the emergent nature of the Universe, reality and human evolution. And that we all need to see things in a new way if we are to survive the great challenge we face at this time in our history. Archive 05-20-2018

1500: Progressive Spirit: Podcaster's website ; Underwriter website What can mathematics tell us about God? According to today's guest, physicist and mathematician, H Chris Ransford, mathematics can tell us quite a bit about the classic attributes of an infinite God who is all-knowing, all-seeing, and all-powerful. The logic and beauty of mathematics offers an exciting path to exploring the nature of reality and of elevating the conversation between atheists, theists, and the rest of us about religion, science, and Godhood. H. Chris Ransford earned advanced degrees in Physics and Engineering in France and Germany. He lectured at the University of Melbourne and was a Research Fellow at Monash University, Australia. In 2015, he published "The Far Horizons of Time." In this episode, host John Shuck and Chris Ransford discuss his latest book, God and the Mathematics of Infinity: What Irreducible Mathematics says About Godhood." Archive 09-28-2017
